Description

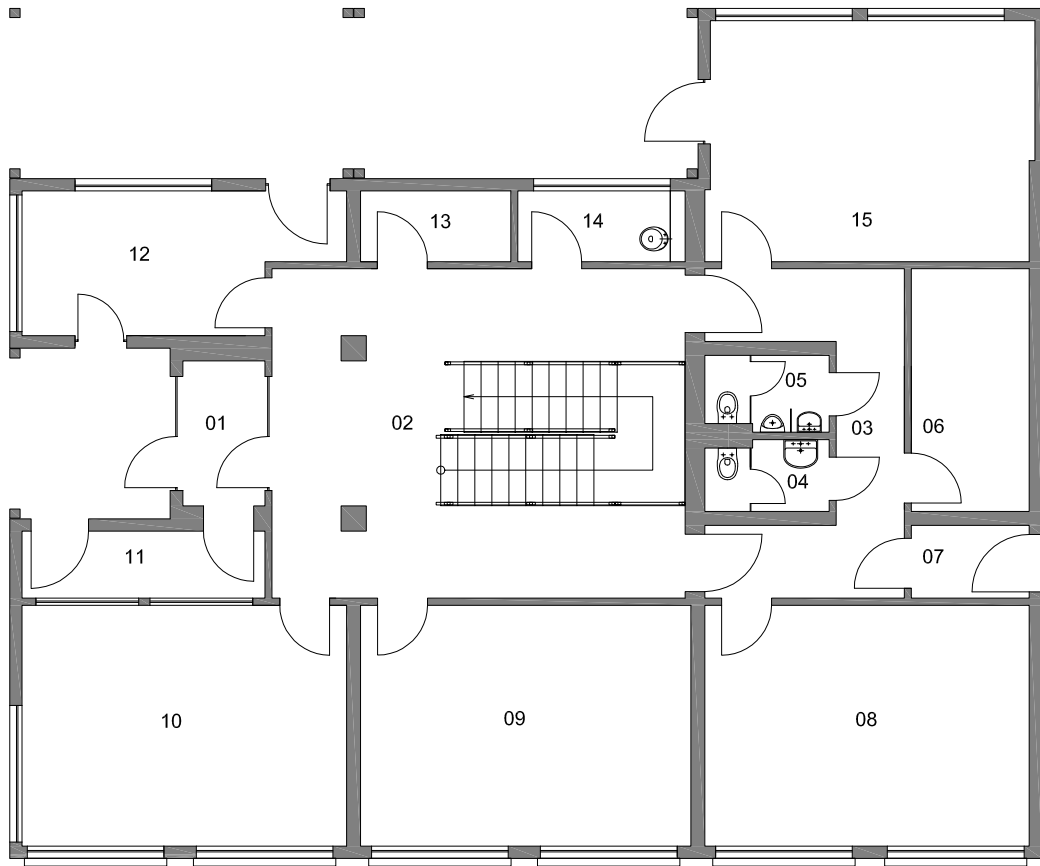

An administrative building with 3 occupied floors, the 4th floor encompasses a skylight to brighten the inner part of the building and, in the event of fire, it creates a chimney effect for smoke removal as it is equipped with a sensor to control ventilation. This space, characterized by an open area traversing all floors, has not only practical but also aesthetic benefits.

The external shape of the building facilitated the addition of a terrace and a balcony made from tropical timber on the second floor. All floors are topped with a steel roof with a 260 kg/m² load capacity for expected winter burdens, which, along with the terrace and balcony, are drained with a gutter.
